

Become a Kids Help Phone Student Ambassador

A Student Ambassador is a Kids Help Phone Youth Volunteer committed to contributing to the success and well being of their own generation.

Students helping Kids Help Phone be there for kids...

The idea for the Student Ambassador Program came from a student - a student who wanted to have Kids Help Phone awareness and fund raising representatives in every high school across Canada.

The mission of the Student Ambassador Program is to give high school students the opportunity to have a positive volunteer experience, gain new skills and contribute to the success and well-being and of their generation and generations to come.

Since the program's inception, more than 9,000 students have been trained from coast to coast. Right now, there are more than 2,000 Student Ambassadors in over 450 high schools across Canada.

Student Ambassadors across the country get the word out by putting up posters; promoting awareness online; doing puppet shows for little kids and speaking to teens, adults and the media about Kids Help Phone; and by organizing community fund raisers and participating in local Kids Help Phone events.

It's a great way to get new skills, make new friends and help others while enriching your own life. The more you put into being a Student Ambassador, the more you, and everyone around you, will get out of it!
